Dear Parent/Carer

Re: Virtual Information Evening

Many parents ask how they can continue to support their children as they begin to prepare for GCSE examinations. Parental involvement during this crucial time can make all the difference, with successful students often talking of the importance of this. According to research, parental support is up to eight times more important in determining a child's academic success than background and social circumstances. The good news is that you do not have to be an expert in any of the subjects your child chooses to make a difference.

Through years 10 and 11, the expectations of your child will start to grow and at times these expectations can be challenging to meet. By working with your child's teachers, you can help make sure your child has a good understanding of the importance of planning, independent learning, revision, exam technique and answer structure.

To support you with this we have produced an information booklet, which has guidance on exam boards, controlled assessment, rules of exams, support materials and other top tips.

Our Directors of English, Maths and Science have also recorded their own information videos and included the revision techniques they would recommend for their subjects. Alongside these, there is information from our Sixth Form Directors on Sixth Form enrolment and for everyone a message from our Headteacher, Mr Williman.

Please follow the link below to all the presentations, as well as the information booklet.
